

The Unitarian Society for Psychical Studies

A Short Introduction

The background of the entire image is a composite. It features Michelangelo's famous fresco "The Creation of Adam" set against a cosmic backdrop of a starry night sky and a bright, glowing yellow-orange sphere, possibly representing the sun or a nebula. The hands of God and Adam are reaching towards each other, with a small gap between them. On the left side, there is a large, detailed nautilus shell. On the right side, there is a depiction of a person in historical or biblical attire, possibly a prophet or saint, looking up at the cosmic scene. The overall theme is the intersection of the divine, the natural world, and the human mind.

Questing and Questioning

The Unitarian Society for Psychical Studies was founded in 1965 by the Rev G. Stanley Whitby.

The main objective of the Society was defined as:

"To encourage the study of psychical phenomena in all its aspects with a critical and open mind."

As such we seek to balance wonder with reason as we inquire into and are inspired by, the mysteries of the universe.

Life is Phenomenal

Be part of the Wonder

The background of the slide is a vibrant, abstract cosmic scene. It features a large, bright green and yellow nebula in the center, surrounded by smaller blue and white star-like specks. On the right side, there is a faint, classical-style illustration of a figure, possibly a deity or historical figure, draped in robes and holding a staff or scepter. The overall color palette is dominated by greens, yellows, and blues, creating a mystical and ethereal atmosphere.
